DEAD AT HAIKU

Geo. E. Beckwith Passes Away After a Brief Illness.

BROTHER AT THE BIER

A Striking Funeral Service - Ser mon and Prayers-At the Grave. Life of Decedent.

(Special Correspondence).

MAUL November 26.-Wednesday evening, the 23d, George E. Beckwith, after an tilness of about ten days, died at his home in Haiku. The funeral. which was largely attended by both native and foreign residents of Mant, took place in Pala Foreign church the 26. Rev. S. Kapu and Mev. J. M. Lewis, both of Walluku, amdeted Dr. E. G. Beckwith in this to him, the saddest of all ceremonics. The pathos of the scene will never be forgotten by those present-a white-haired, aged man, repeating the funeral prayer of a California Club Indulges him. much-loved, aged brother. The prayer, too, was remarkable for the deep feeting and fond affection expressed. In it the doctor referred to the happy days spent together with his brother on the Everything Hawalian at a Popular old farm in New England, to their happy reunion after many years in Hawait nel, to his brother's long and successful efforts as teacher of the bible class in the Paia church, to his care and affection for Maunaolu Seminary of which he has been trustee for many years, to his influence for good and love for Hawalians, and to his career as a man of affairs.

After the services, citizens formed in procession and about thirty carriages followed to the grave in the cemetery of upper Makawao. At the grave there was a short prayer by Dr. Beckwith watlan day. and a sweet, sad hymn by girls of Maunaolu Seminary.

At the church Messrs, H. P. Baldwin, C. H. Dickey, D. D. Baldwin, R. F. Engle, D. C. Lindsay and W. E. Nicoll, acted as pail-bearers. At the cemetery six of the seminary girls, dressed alike in black skirts and white waists, tenderly bore the body of their old friend to his last resting place on earth.

George E. Beckwith was born in New England some seventy years ago. He was educated at Williams College and at the time when Dr. Beckwith, his brother, was president. Afterwards he became interested in the cultivation of sugar cane and was the first manager of Haiku plantation. He was perhaps the oldest (foreign) kamaaina of Makawao district.

He leaves a widow and two daughters, Misses May and Martha Beckwith. who are studying at schools on the mainland. Dr. Edward Beckwith and an older brother, the father of William Beckwith of Pala also survive him.

George Beckwith was a man who believed that there was something better or position-good character; and be cause of a life which exemplified this belief, he leaves a good name behind him and is deeply and sincerely mourned by the whole community. Because of a desire on the part of teachers of Makawao district to attend Mr. Beck3 with's funeral, the annual Maui teachers convention was postponed to Friday, December 1.
